

NAVIGATING MARKET DISRUPTIONS

As the impacts of the coronavirus pandemic continue to evolve, shippers are working to understand the long- and short-term implications for their transportation networks and supply chains. Here are Schneider's top three tips to navigate the ongoing disruptions in the marketplace and ensure success for today and tomorrow.

PROTECT YOUR ACCESS TO CAPACITY AND CUSTOMER SERVICE

Work with a carrier with a diversified customer base.

Use a nationwide carrier that can shift drivers and equipment where it's needed most to navigate the ebbs and flows in both your business and the market.

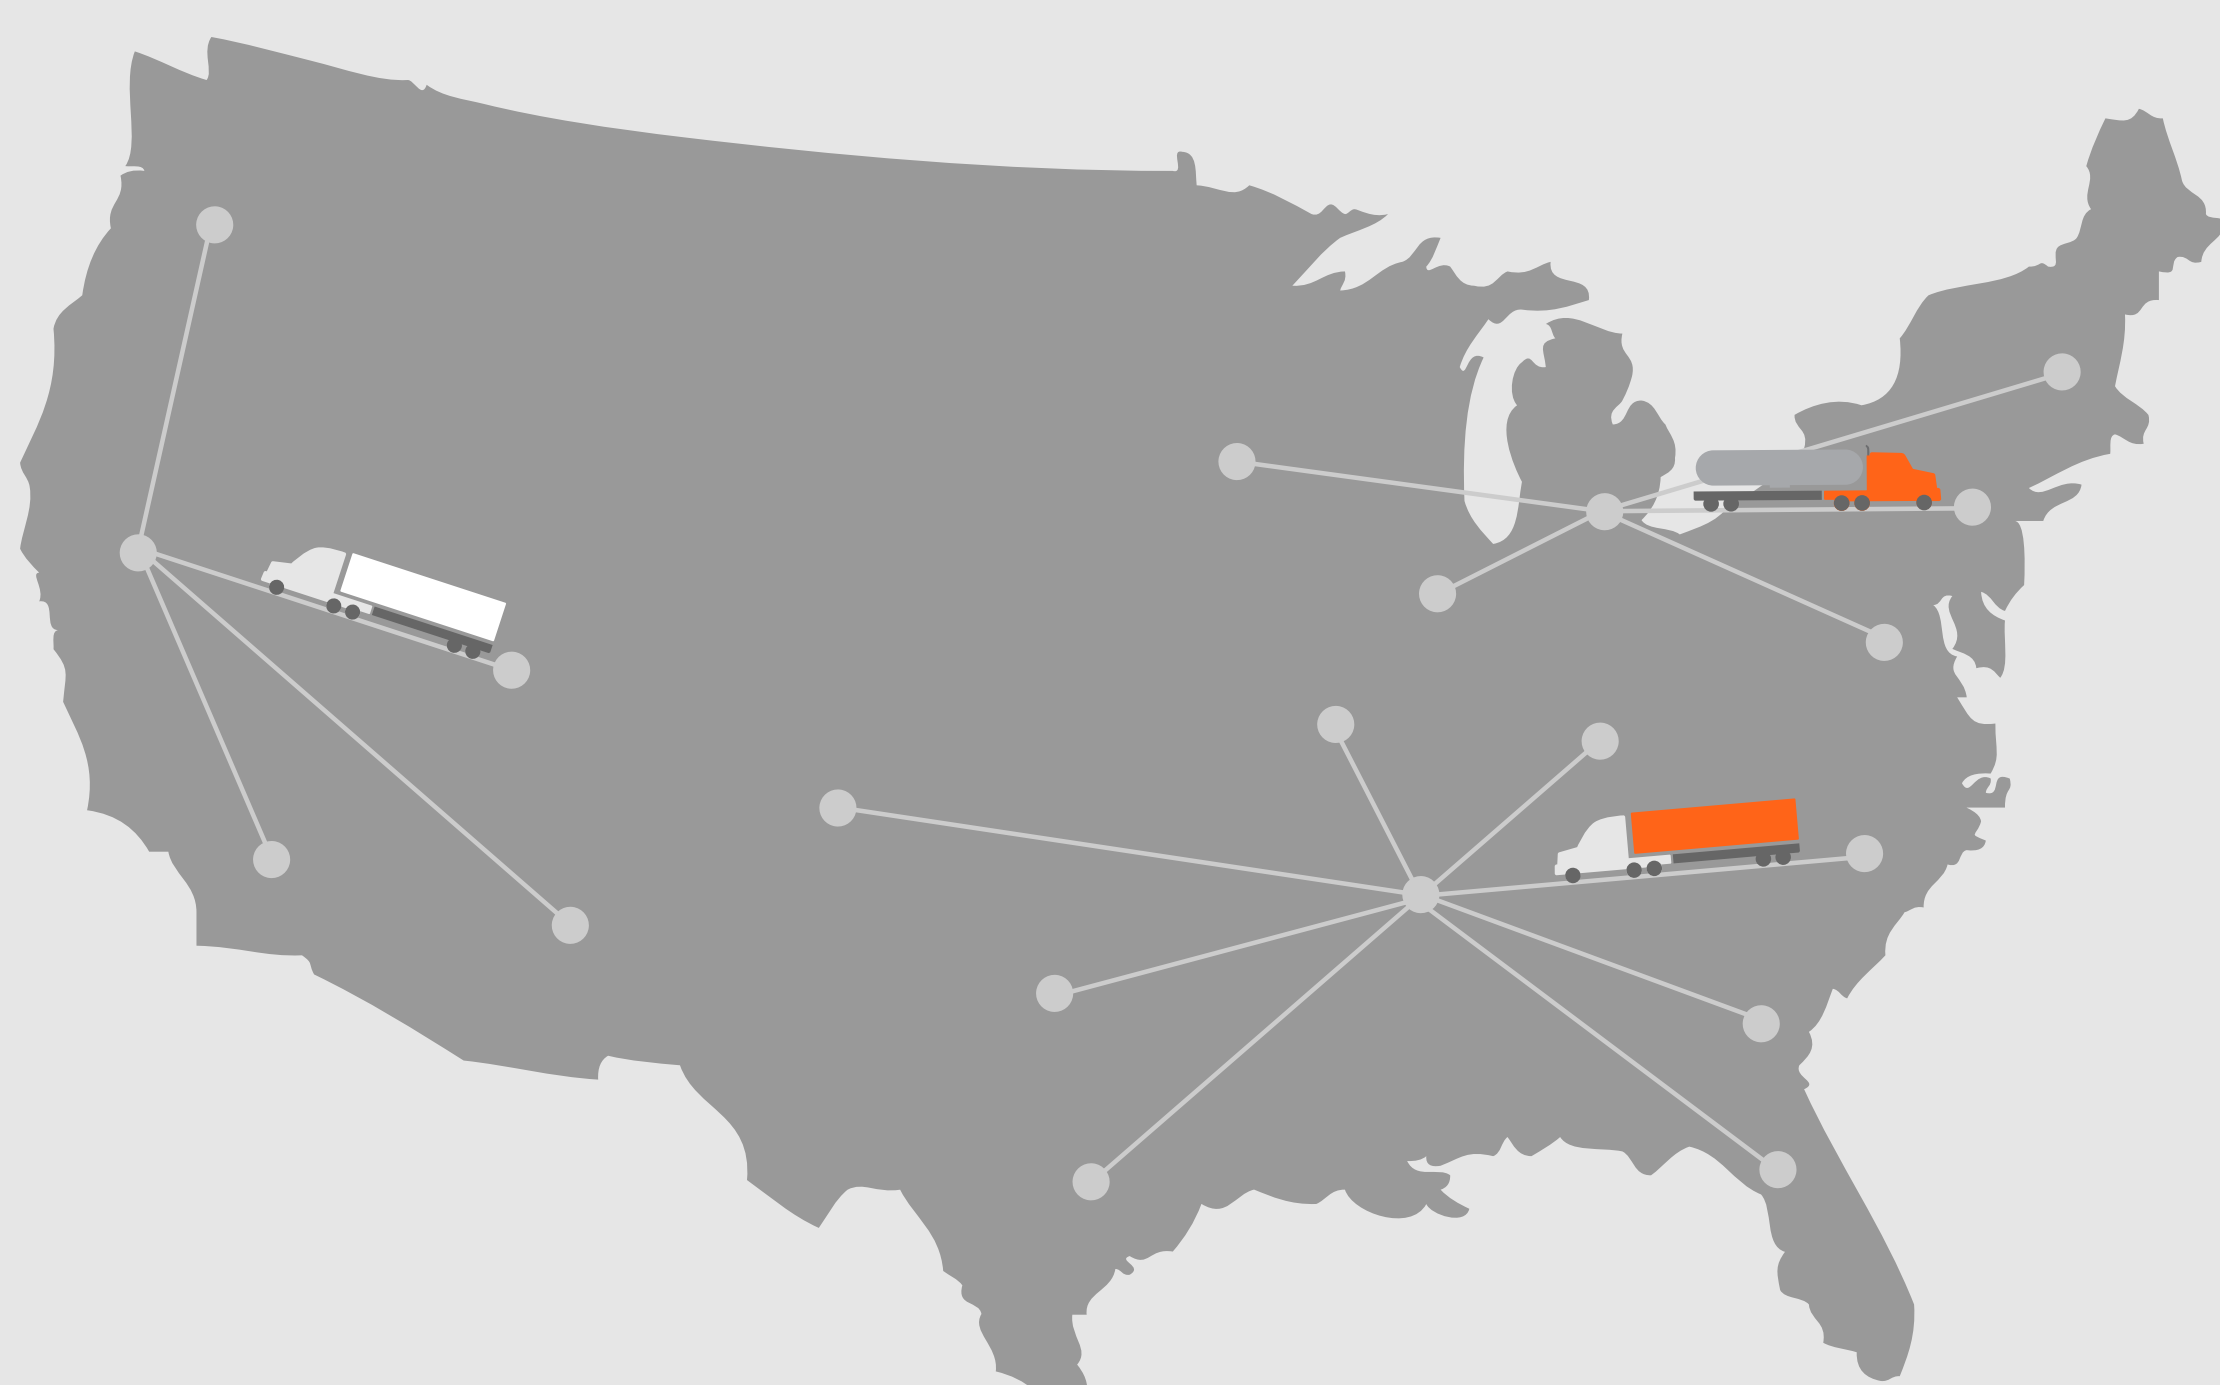

Assess the stability of your carrier base. While demand may be decreasing, so will capacity as carrier closures continue.

LOOK FOR MULTI-MODAL AND STRATEGIC SUPPLY CHAIN SOLUTIONS

Strategic carrier relationships can help develop optimized network solutions and achieve better long-term pricing for your freight.

USE CARRIERS YOU CAN COUNT ON

Spot market prices will not be favorable forever. Work with the carriers who have shown up for you and done their best to service your freight.
